

2017 CHINA GREEN COMPANIES SUMMIT

Divided Progress: Finding New Economic Drivers

The development of business springs from a divergence in perspective towards progress. Today's divide has arisen from technology, and the revolution brought on by technology's advancement. From the Industrial Revolution to Industry 4.0, from the Internet to Artificial Intelligence, from the IT to biotechnology revolution, technology has disrupted industries while creating growth opportunities for companies. Some firms have been eliminated, others transformed, and many more born.

Technology has also changed the fundamental elements of industry competition, from a clear advantage with size and scale, towards unprecedented strength in combined speed, service, and product ecosystems. Business values are being redefined along with the technologies surrounding them. Without an embrace of these technologies, businesses will fall to competition.

Which business models and companies will arise as sustainable new drivers of the future economy? Join China's top business leadership in the pursuit of better economic progress at the 2017 China Green Companies Summit in Zhengzhou.
